

Emma Beaudoin

Emma was diagnosed in March 2009 at the age of 2. She had been sick with what doctors thought was a virus - but she was covered in bruises and had leg, arm and abdominal pain. For a week she deteriorated, before she was finally admitted to CHEO and diagnosed with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia (ALL). Her father had passed away just four months earlier, so this news was beyond devastating.

Emma has been in treatment for the last 2 years. She has been hospitalized several times and has been unable to attend daycare. But she is always a trooper and has an amazing understanding of her illness. Emma will be done her treatment at the end of May and is very excited to be starting kindergarten in the fall.
